

Home Truths with comedian Mandy Nolan

April 17, 2015

 Read later

Dominic Cansdale

Comedian Mandy Nolan will release her new book Home Truths in Brisbane on 28 April.

What does your home say about you?

Comedian and author Mandy Nolan may have the answer.

In her new book Home Truths, Mandy Nolan asks who we really are when the curtains are shut and the pyjamas are on.

"I just wanted to write about who we are when we close the door."

When we open that door we engage in life, we're someone else, but who are we and what do we value and what does it mean to be at home?"

Using humour to dissect the concepts of self-identity and why we are the way we are, Mandy Nolan found inspiration through a range of topics – from toilets to share housing.

"I love taking stuff like that and looking at how we used to live and looking at now and looking at issues of sustainability and cultural ideas and our sense of, you know, consumerist individualism."

I don't know how we think we can stop climate change at the rate of toilets we're putting in."

Mandy will launch Home Truths in Brisbane at Avid Reader, West End on 28 April. Listen to her full interview with Kim Mothershaw on 4BC Afternoons here:

play audio

pause audio

 submit